

British Values at Eden Park Year 2

British Values

Democracy

In our classroom discussions, we know we have a voice, and our opinions will be heard.

In our books (and especially our Values books) we are encouraged to make comments and respond to feedback.

In History, we learn about the differences in the way people were treated in the past when our society was not as democratic.

In History, we learn about Remembrance and why it is still important today.

In RE, we learn that not all religions encourage a democratic way of life.

British Values

Rule of Law

In PE, we learn and understand the importance of following set rules.

In PSHE, we learn that rules are there to protect me.

In Writing, we learn to follow and write instructions.

In Science, we learn how to carry out the scientific process.

In RE, we consider how different religions follow different rules.

British Values

Individual Liberty

In Art, DT and Music we can express ourselves.

In Wild for Learning, we consider and manage risk taking outside of the classroom.

In History, we consider how explorers and pioneers have been brave and this inspires our choices.

In Computing, we learn the importance of taking responsibility for our digital safety.

In PE we consider the risks we need to manage when learning new sports and activities.

In History, we celebrate British festivals such as Remembrance Day.

British Values

Mutual Respect

In Art, we show respect for each other's work.

In Geography we learn that everyone is different.

In RE, we respect other people's faiths, beliefs and opinions.

In History, we learn about how respect for other's has evolved through time.

In Writing, we consider the lives of others and understand how they are similar and different from our own.

In PE, we focus on teamwork and competitive sports.

British Values

Tolerance

In Art, we learn about accepting others' preferences.

In Geography, we learn that life is not the same for everyone.

In RE, I understand that people's faiths and beliefs are different.

In History, we learn about how tolerance has been different in the past.

In Writing, we learn that everyone does things differently and that is okay.

In RE, we learn about different cultural and religious festivals.
